FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

Cybersurf launches Error Resolution Service

Cybersurf partners with Barefruit to help make browsing error-free!

London 1st October 2007 – Cybersurf Corp. ("Cybersurf") (TSX Venture: CY) one of Canada's leading independent Internet technology and service companies, today launches its new error resolution service developed in partnership with Barefruit, global leader in error resolution.

Cybersurf have teamed up with London-based error correction specialists Barefruit to put an end to such frustrations. Barefruit identify the site the user intended to find, and present them with a list of highly relevant alternative sites. So now Cybersurf's customers can now enjoy the enhanced user experience developed by Barefruit, which aims to make browser errors a thing of the past.

Paul Mercia, Cybersurf's President and CEO, said: "We are delighted to be partnering with Barefruit to launch this exciting new service. At Cybersurf we strive to provide our users with the leading edge services they demand. Building Barefruit's analysis and re-direction technology into our infrastructure breaks new ground improving the way we surf today."

Dave Roberts, Joint Founder and CEO of Barefruit Ltd said that "the Cybersurf team were quick to recognise the value of the Barefruit solution for their users and we are delighted to partner with them launching our innovative service. Cybersurf has a fabulous reputation in the ISP market as an innovator and the Barefruit service continues to enhance that position."

It has been estimated that user errors make up as much as 15% of network traffic and add to the frustration associated with Internet Access. The new Cybersurf service uses the Barefruit analysis and redirection technology to improve the surfing experience.
